IV. Special Presentations

Update on University Funding Policies
-Bob Naples, Assistant Vice Chancellor of Student and Campus Life, said that he had a conference call with people from the UC Office of the President and an attorney from UCOP regarding funding policies and guidelines. He said that the UCOP representatives had made three major points. Their first point was that any campus that excludes registered religious and political organizations from funding would be in violation of the University of California Fee Policies. Naples said that their second point was that they are willing to work with UCLA to amend USAC’s funding policies in a way that would be mindful of the wishes of the UCLA campus. He said that this would not be an overnight change. He said that UCOP representatives would meet with him and a small group of student leaders. He said that he was to determine the number of USAC representatives that would be at the meeting, and that he would discuss this with McKesey. He said that he wants to make sure that the viewpoint represented by the USAC representatives was representative of Council. He said that UCOP’s third point was that there were other issues that would need to be explored with USAC, among which were the practice of categorizing organizations, the campus sponsorship of organizations and the purpose of having advocacy groups. He said UCOP did not intend to eliminate all of USAC’s current practices, but that there were some things that would have to be changed to ensure that everything is fair and within the law.

-Chiang asked if any organization willing to sign a non-discrimination clause was eligible for funding and, if so, would they be eligible for all of the funding that USAC offers or just certain categories of funding.

-Naples said that they would be eligible for consideration. He said that he is not sure if USAC would be able to exclude them from some of the funding sources. He said he thought it was likely that they would be eligible for all levels of funding.

-Mann said that there was some good news. He said that there had been concern that the new guidelines would prohibit USAC offices from collecting fees from referenda. He said that UCOP has informed them that USAC is considered a campus division and its offices can, therefore, receive referendum funding.

-Naples said that he would contact McKesey with further information. On another matter, he referred to an editorial in the Daily Bruin entitled, “Displays Provoke Disgust Not Discussion”. He said that he was a staunch supporter of freedom of speech and that he believes people have a right to hold such events. He said, however, that events that get out of hand provide USAC with an opportunity to promote civility on campus. He said he would like to work with USAC to develop a positive campus climate that encourages debate.

Student Voice Referendum

-Kaczmarek said that a few years ago a fee referendum had been passed to help fund UCSA and USSA. He said that the terms of that referendum stated that it would expire after four years and could then be renewed at Council’s discretion. He said that he was proposing that Council renew the terms of the referendum, and that they not insert an expiration date. Shamma said that this referendum would be for a $1.50 fee per quarter per student. She said that $0.97 would go to UCSA, $0.34 would go to a national student advocacy organization and $0.19 would go to travel expenses for the EVP office.

-Schreiber asked who would decide on which national student advocacy organization would receive the funds.

-Kaczmarek said that Council would. He said that they could also choose not to collect that part of the fee.

-Lawson said that UCLA gives a substantially higher amount of money to UCSA than most other campuses do. He said that the reason for this is that the UCLA contribution is funded through fees collected through a referendum. He said that, in a sense this is good, but in another sense it is not. He said that it gives USAC no room to barter. He said that there are times, such as when USAC asked for reforms from UCSA last year, when it may have been helpful to have more control over the funds that go to UCSA.

-McKesey asked what reforms Lawson was referring to.

-Lawson said that there were several reforms that USAC asked for which included a balanced budget. He asked how much UCLA gave this year.

-Shamma said that UCLA gave $67,000 to UCSA.

-Lawson asked if it was true that some campuses gave only a few thousand dollars.

-Kaczmarek said that all of the campuses paid enough to be member organizations.

-Ambrosio asked if student fees can go directly to USSA.

-Kaczmarek said that funds cannot go directly from the students to USSA. He said that the collection would have to be at the discretion of Council.
-Mann asked if Kaczmarek thought that UCOP would allow this referendum to be implemented.
-Kaczmarek said that he thought that this was the only way to do it.
-Palma/Saracho said that UCLA has a history of taking a leading role in these organizations.
-Chiang asked when Council would decide whether or not to collect the fee for the national advocacy organization.
-Kaczmarek said that they would decide when at the time they are reviewing the annual budget.
-Chiang asked if this referendum would have to be renewed eventually as well.
-Kaczmarek said that it would not. He said that it would last for an indefinite length of time.
-Chiang asked where the $0.19 would go.
-Kaczmarek said that it would go to a separate account within the EVP office. He said that that account funds transportation to conferences, and that it is audited by Student Government Accounting office.
-Williams asked about the significance of the $31,900 amount.
-Kaczmarek said that that was the amount that USAC paid to these organizations out of their general budget before the first referendum was passed.
-McKesey said that this would be an action item on next week’s agenda.

CalPIRG
-Jolene Mitchell said that she just wanted to let Council know that, tied in with CalPIRG’s campaign to get book prices lowered, Thompson Learning recently announced that they would be reducing the price on one of their Calculus textbooks. She said that the reduced price is available only to UCLA students at this time.

V. Appointments

Office Space Allocation Committee (OSAC)
-Nguyen said that the Office Space Allocation Committee would not be opening up the entire space allocation process at this time, and would be reviewing a specific proposal to give the Student Welfare Commission more space in which to conduct the numerous projects they oversee.
-McKesey said that USAC’s Bylaws specify that the Facilities Commissioner serves as Chairperson of the Office Space Allocation Committee, and that she was recommending that Schreiber and Palma/Saracho be appointed to OSAC at this time to review and consider the issue concerning more space for the Student Welfare Commission.
-Kaczmarek moved and Chiang seconded to appoint Schreiber and Palma/Saracho to the Office Space Allocation Committee (OSAC), to serve with Nguyen who is the designated Chairperson of OSAC.

Resolution in Commemoration of the Armenian Genocide

-Chiang asked if having the flags flown at half-mast had been worked out with the University.
-The ASA member said he thought that was something USAC would take care of.

-Nelson said that he assumed that such requests would be handled by the Executive Vice Chancellor. He said further that lowering the flag is usually considered to be a big deal.
-Kaczmarek said that he had a copy of the UC Policy on flags in his office and had read it just this afternoon. He said he agreed with Dr. Nelson’s comment on who to contact.

Resolution to Globally Protect Human Rights and History
-The member of ASA said that this resolution deals with Turkey’s denial of the Armenian Genocide. He said that it also deals with other human rights violations on the part of the Republic of Turkey.
-Palma/Saracho said that he was unable to distribute this resolution to Council in time for it to be sponsored. He said that it will be brought back next week. He asked Bob Williams if he knew what the impact on ASUCLA would be if Council adopted the statement in the Resolution which would require that no goods assembled in the Republic of Turkey could be purchased or sold at UCLA.
-Williams said that he would have to know what products Turkey exports before he could answer that.
-Lawson asked if this would be a resolution or a policy directive to the ASUCLA Board of Directors (BOD).
-McKesey said that it would probably be a policy directive to the BOD.
-Mann said that ASUCLA has a history of being responsive to social issues, but they generally don’t buy things from Countries, they buy things from Companies. He said that they would need a list of products that Turkey manufactures.
-Williams said that, ultimately, a decision on such a matter would be made by the BOD.
-McKesey said that this issue would need to be looked into.

He said that he is presenting two options for the Election Calendar concerning the dates of the elections, and is asking Council to decide on which one they prefer.
